Chapter 1 by Kenzawenza

I am a bit like Captain America but it isn't as cool as you may think. A week or two ago I woke up after 70 years of being comatose and trapped in a box a scientist made before kidnapping me. The box kept me young but not very well informed about the world as it changed around me. The scientist is dead now, his other experiments put in storage until his niece sorts everything out.

His death was the reason I was found. I guess now I am "free". Well, except for the part where my every move is watched and I have daily checkups. It has also been pretty hard adjusting. I still can't figure out how to work the weird machine that heats up stuff. A mike-wave, I think it's called.

Chapter 2 by Amelia Rose

Sandra, the scientists niece, gave me a thing she calls an iPhone. It's like a magic piece of glass, from what I can tell. The closest thing I can think of that is like it is the cinema's screen, but in color. The cinema's are still around, at least. They aren't too different I don't think. I've only seen one, in passing when Sandra was showing me around the city.

The city is huge now. When I used to live here, it was so much smaller. Now there are so many people and such tall buildings. I can't see more of Story Wars

One crazy thing is TV is in color now. A miracle now I can actually see the color of things on the TV. It is a blessing from the gods.

Chapter 4 by Bikwi

Sandra gave me another gadget for four photos. I wanted to savour the moment with a genuine smile but was impressed by how quickly she could put up one, I thought how thoughtful of her to think I needed a walking stick, but all for her caption, with my romantic Viking.
